

Action automates “quote-to-cash” and enables TE21 to focus on growing their business

Integration and automation saves 20 hours per week and provides insights into results, customer status and pipeline.

Challenges

- Slow manual accounting and reporting process
- Error prone reporting due to lack of automation
- Needed to scale processes to match growth

Needs

- Implementation of a CRM to aid sales cycle
- An ERP that would smoothly integrate with a CRM, providing automated Quote-to-Cash process
- Eliminate duplication of effort across systems

Solution

- Investment in NetSuite and Salesforce, with the Actian Connector for integration and scalability between the two systems
- Gained efficiency equal to hiring a part-time accountant
- Achieved real-time reporting, significantly reducing manual data accumulation and distribution that could take weeks
- Management team gained insights that turned into results, customer status and pipeline
- Increased accuracy by eliminating human error in manual processes

Integration and automation saves 20 hours per week

Achieved real-time reporting on processes that used to take weeks

Better insights into processes and results for management teams

“We greatly reduced potential errors and removed the manual process with the Actian Connector between Salesforce and NetSuite. Before, we would produce quotes in Excel, invoice in QuickBooks and record cash collections with separate manual reports at each stage of the process. Now, we have an automated ‘quote-to-cash’ process that has saved us a tremendous amount of time and allowed us to us to focus on what we do best and grow our business.”

As TE21 grew and developed more complicated business processes, they found themselves outgrowing their manual Quick Books solution and desired a more in-depth, robust and automated process. The company had also developed a need for a CRM system that enabled a true “quote-to-cash” process starting with sales which could be easily connected to their financial billing, collection and reporting system. Blaise Buczkowski, TE21’s Chief Strategy Officer, led the effort to find a better solution that could handle the challenges of the growing business.

TE21 began tackling this issue by researching ERP systems with the ability to seamlessly integrate with a CRM system and landed on NetSuite and Salesforce. “From there, it was a matter of figuring out how to integrate data between Salesforce and NetSuite in a way that would best suit our needs,” said Blaise. “There were a couple of different integration options that we considered, and we decided to go with Actian because of their experience with integrating NetSuite and Salesforce data. Also, Actian’s direct partnership with NetSuite helped to simplify communication around configuring the integration to meet our specific needs.”

After 6 months of customization between NetSuite and Salesforce, Actian successfully integrated the two systems and TE21’s new automated process was up and running in time to meet their end of fiscal year goal. “We love it. We are now able to push the quotes through, create the sales orders and invoice them as soon as the sales orders are approved, and it’s all been working very well,” said Blaise. “Actian has been great to work with on little tweaks here and there for mapping data points that I didn’t think about during set up.”

After integration, TE21 saw numerous tangible business results such as reduced reporting time, better insights into processes and results for management teams, more accurate and timely pipeline information, and improved efficiency equal to hiring a part-time accountant. When asked about what she would do differently next time, Blaise immediately said she would have done better resource planning up front and had a person dedicated to driving the CRM implementation and another to drive the ERP implementation. “When going through two system implementations and an integration for the first time, you need a lot of handholding. It’s very difficult, it’s very challenging,” said Blaise. “But Actian and NetSuite helped make our integration a success. They have great customer service and are always willing to help out. They’re awesome to work with.”
